this brilliant finale of our Tournament, but it was crewded out of our last issue, for want space. Recalling the scene, at this late Tournament, as follows: day, makes us and perhaps our reader, feel as one "who treeds some banquet hall deserted." Therefore, we shall only offer now a brief and unvarnished account. And we to this, only because all the reports we have yet seen—owing doubtless to the length of their descriptions of the interesting exercises of the Tournament—devote but few pen strokes to this, the most captivating picture Frank O. Anderson, of the whole scene.
